

We were young adults with lots of potential 60 years ago, not knowing what the future held for each of us. Now we're seniors on the homestretch of life with pasts marked by achievements and accomplishments, both happy and sad, that we've endured and maybe prospered from. We have a collective glue that binds us together regardless of what happened in the intervening years. Showing up next year to renew old acquaintances or forge new ones represents another unique milestone for each of us. Looking forward to this reunion. There may not be another one for some of us. Golden Bears live long but not forever. Let's enjoy it. JMS
